Moved by Coun. Stewart—That the Reeve and Secretary be appointed as a committee re continuation of the grasshopper mixing station at Irma.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Smallwood—That the Secretary be instructed to take up with the Board of Transport Commissioners the matter of the dangerous situation at the west end of the Irma railway yards on account of spotting freight cars and obstructing the view of east railway traffic of persons crossing public highway crossing at that point, this letter being sent in view of the reply by the Superintendent of the C.N.R., Edmonton.—Carried.

District Convenor Visits Local W.I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. T. Brunner on Tuesday last week, with 15 members answering the roll and seven visitors present, including four from Irma and one from Edmonton. Owing to the condition of the roads, the president, Mrs. A. H. Ford, was unable to be present, so the first vice president, Mrs. R. Greer, conducted the meeting.

Mrs. D. Walker, secretary of Child Welfare, reported three families were in need of help and these were to be investigated by the committee. A donation of miscellaneous articles was received from the C.G.T., which was much appreciated.

A free demonstration on Interior Decorating will be given by Miss Lee, of the Vermilion School of Agriculture, on Monday, June 26th, in the Roseale hall and on the following Tuesday a free demonstration on "Food" will be given in the Masonic hall, Wainwright. It is hoped that as many as can will take advantage of these courses.

Two British plate mirrors have been donated to the Wainwright hospital for the use of the patients.

Mrs. R. MacFarland, of Irma, constituency convenor, gave a very interesting talk and read a paper on "The Value of Sports and Recreation", which was much enjoyed, and invited as many as possible to attend the constituency conference which will be held at Bruce on July 5th.

No meetings will be held during the months of July and August.

The meeting closed with "God Save the King," after which the hostesses, Mrs. R. Greer and Miss E. Martin, served a delicious lunch and a social half-hour was spent.

Mr. O. L. Michon purchased the Brunner property on Fourth avenue and during the past week an interchange of residences was made by Messrs. Michon and Geo. Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mills celebrated the 35th anniversary of their wedding last week and received the congratulations of their many friends throughout the district.

BROADCASTING THE ROYAL VISIT

Day in and day out, during the month-long visit of Their Majesties the King and Queen to Canada, picked CBC commentators are on hand to describe the ceremonies and festivities, wherever they may be, to radio audiences in Canada, the United States and about the globe. The above picture, taken on Parliament Hill, Ottawa, during the ceremony of Trooping the Color, May 20, is typical of the Corporation's microphone positions. Three or four such

DISTRICT SHOCKED AT SUDDEN PASSING WAINWRIGHT LADY

It is our sad duty this week to chronicle the passing on Sunday evening last of Pauline, the beloved wife of William Bibby, Jr. All that was possible in the way of medical care and attention was done for this young wife, she having been under specialist's care in Edmonton for some time previous to her admission to the local hospital, but she failed to rally and passed away as stated.

The late Pauline (Polly to her friends) always lived a simple and honest life and on spectacular phrase can justify the love and respect with which she was held by all who came in contact with her cheery "Hello" and friendly smile. Her passing is as the passing of a landmark.

Born at Hardisty on November 17th, 1906, she was at the time of her death in her 33rd year. She moved to Wainwright with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Springer, at the tender age of five years. Attending both the public and high schools here, she later joined the staff of the Wainwright Star, where she was employed until the time of her marriage to Mr. Bibby in August, 1928.

Throughout her all-too-short life she was an ardent and enthusiastic

Wainwright Band To Play at Exhibition

Our Town Band has accepted an offer to play at the Edmonton Exhibition on Tuesday, July 18th. They will take part in the big parade and later play at the exhibition grounds.

We understand that the band is organizing a special excursion for this event. Special all-steel coaches will be brought to Wainwright and attached to C.N.R. No. 1 (Continental). This means that if the band secures the minimum number of passengers necessary the citizens of this town and district will get a much lower fare than the regular exhibition excursion tickets. They will be able to announce more particulars in next week's issue of The Star.

Final Examinations Now in Progress

Final examinations at the public high school began on Monday morning last. Pupils who were not promoted on their work and tests during the year are writing final tests, set by the teachers, during the first three days of the current week.

On Thursday, June 22nd, grade XII students will begin their departmental finals, while grade IX pupils will begin their departmentals on Monday, June 26th.

Students in grades X and XI finish school for the year at four o'clock on Wednesday, June 21st. Because of a misleading item in an Edmonton paper, the following regulation issued by the Department of Education should be noted in this connection: "Principals of all graded schools of three or more rooms selected as centres for grade XII examinations are advised that they may dismiss grade X and XI students on Wednesday p.m., June 21st."

Edm. Exhibition News Flashes

Manager Percy W. Abbott, of the Edmonton Exhibition, can now turn his entire attention to completing arrangements for the Edmonton Exhibition after its strenuous task as chairman of the Edmonton Royal Visit Committee. It is his intention to repeat the Royal Visit motif, in exhibition grounds decorations, and his hope is that as many folk will flock to Edmonton for the week of July 17th to 22nd, as came for the Royal Visit.

Thousands of the pennants which elicited comment from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, will be used in decorating the city and the Exhibition grounds for the sixty-first annual summer fair to be held July 17th to 22nd, and many of the large cut-outs which were so effective, will be used in connection with the Exhibition.

Improvements which have been so noticeable around the Exhibition grounds are being continued, and extended; concrete and iron electric light standards are being set in place to light the sidewalks around the west and south sections of the Exhibition grounds. The entire grounds have been drained, graded and filled with gravel or chert. As last year, the railway companies and bus lines are offering single-fare return for Edmonton Exhibition, July 17th to 22nd.

RATRAY-CHYNOWETH NUPTIALS CELEBRATED

A wedding of wide interest throughout the district was solemnized in the United Church on Wednesday afternoon of last week when Della May, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Chynoweth, of Wainwright, became the bride of Albert Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ratray, also of Wainwright.

The church was tastefully decorated with hollyhocks and wild roses, and at 4 o'clock the charming bride entered to the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin", played by Mrs. A. Toogood, of Calgary, Alta. In her floor-length gown of white lace and net, the bride was lovely as she was given in marriage by her father.

Her bouquet consisted of butterfly and rapunzel roses and maiden hair fern. Miss Ruby Chynoweth was attired in queen's blue lace and net with a becoming white hat and white accessories. She carried a dash of pink carnations and fern and attended her sister as bridesmaid.

The groom was supported by his brother, David, and his sister, Della. Mrs. Chynoweth, mother of the bride, was becomingly gowned in an ensemble of blue shade with which she wore navy accessories and a corsage of deep red roses.

The mother of the groom, Mrs. Ratray, also chose deep red roses for the occasion, worn with a fascia dress and black hat and shoes.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. E. Armstrong, B.A., B.D., pastor of the church.

Royal Engine at N.Y. World's Fair

Montreal. Largest streamlined locomotive in the British Empire, the giant "6400" of the Canadian National Railways, which hauled the royal train to the Niagara frontier, has been placed on the display track of the railway exhibit at the New York World's Fair and will also have a place of honor in the transportation pageant throughout the month of July.

The royal "6400" and other locomotives of the same type in use on the National System are among the most powerful and serviceable engines in operation on North American rails. In regular daily service they cover from 10,000 to 14,000 miles every month, more than three times the distance between Montreal and Vancouver. They have been covering this big monthly mileage without a hitch ever since they were put into service two years ago. They are beautiful example of modern motive power. They are more than 94 feet long with tender and have driving wheels 6 feet 6 inches in diameter.

The narrative has "Bob" and "Jimmy", aviators seeking a lost comrade on a jungle island. Here they meet "Turn", native maid and sole inhabitant, who falls in love with "Bob". Subsequently "Kusaa" attacked native chief, shows up with the lost friend all wrapped up and ready to be fed to the sacred crocodiles. The subject is treated seriously. Miss Lamour wears a variety of colorful sarongs while Overman supplies wisecracks in effective slang.

ALBERTA SAFETY LEAGUE

President General Manager

H. W. J. MADDISON HENRY J. BOCHIE

SAFETY LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

An educational campaign designed to focus the attention of the community on the accident situation in Alberta is being launched by the Alberta Safety League, a non-profit, non-sectarian, province-wide organization recently formed to promote public, industrial and home safety. It will enlist the support of the public in the safety movement, develop a safety consciousness in the individual and bring about popular disapproval of traffic violations. It is designed to reach the sphere of the child, the youth and the adult.

Safety organizations in England, the United States and Canada, operating during the past 25 years, have proven that through co-operative effort, properly directed, streets, highways, industries and homes can be made better and safer places in which to work and live, but to assure this we must play an important part in this great accident prevention cause.

This safety movement in Alberta is under the distinguished patronage of His Honor Lieutenant Governor J. C. Bowen, Premier William Abernethy and the Hon. James A. McKinnon, P.C.M.P., and includes amongst its sponsors mayors, highway and traffic officials, enforcement officers and school superintendents, as well as many other interested Alberta citizens.

The policy of the League is as follows:

Moisture Condition Now Above Average

The rains which have fallen from April 1st to June 11th, inclusive, combined with the precipitation which occurred last autumn during August, September and October, and weighed for wheat acreage, indicate that the moisture condition for the three prairie provinces as a unit, is now 104% of the longtime average or normal, as compared with 98% a week ago and 90% at this time last year.

The similar combined average moisture condition for Alberta is now 89% of normal, as compared with 91% last week and 87% at this time a year ago.

For Saskatchewan the similar condition is now 113% as compared with 103% last week and 89% at this time a year ago.

In Manitoba the similar condition is now 80% as compared with 86% a week ago, and 87% at this time last year.

John Boles Stars In Gay Comedy

Gay comedy is the essence of "Fight for Your Lady", which runs at the Elite theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. All of that comedy, mainly supplied by Jack Oakie, but with Erik Rhodes, Billy Gilbert, Gordon Jones and Maude Eburne doing yeoman service to match his pace, is quite funny.

While they as a unit are indulging in their vocal and character antics, John Boles becomes involved in a multilateral comedy romance which brings in Margot Grahame and Ida Lupino as candidates for his affection, with Rhodes and Jones further parties. For good measure, there is also a song number, "Blame It on the Danube", which Boles sings.

Sufficient sense is made as far as story motivation is concerned; all the rest is nonsense. It might be termed elemental comedy that should stimulate anyone to laughter. That can be promised.

Cars Collide on West Highway

Early Thursday morning an unfortunate accident occurred on the main highway about one mile west of town. Just at the turn of the road, a Ford sedan travelling east, collided with a Dodge sedan headed in the opposite direction.

The Ford, which was travelling at a considerable speed, turned over three times, finally landing on its side in the ditch. All six occupants escaped from the wreck with only minor cuts and bruises.

Empire Impressions

It was already the second month of the New Year before I found myself returning to New Zealand and the completion of my purpose. Having experienced the hottest summer that Sydney has recorded in its history, it was really a relief to get away from the land.

I crossed the Tasmann Sea on the "Awatea", a new boat of 13,482 tons, built on the lines of the "Queen Mary". The boat travels the 1,200 miles from Sydney to Wellington in two and one-half days under the skillful handling of Captain "Timetable" Davies. On this voyage I was fortunate in having as cabin-mate a retired Scottish gentleman whose home was in Sao Paulo, Brazil. The tales he told of that country with its undeveloped natural wealth helped to explain the keen interest shown by the industrial nations in the South American countries. Here had beautiful weather for the trip, something rare on this stormy sea; but a few of the passengers got into their berths before we left Sydney harbor and remained there faithfully throughout the trip.

Early Monday morning we entered Cook Strait and I cannot explain the great feeling of satisfaction I experienced as our ship approached New Zealand. It was more the sensation of a homecoming rather than that of a further experience in a new land in which I knew but a few people. The country looked so green and park-like that I could form only a good impression. Quite by coincidence it was May, 1839, when four small sailing vessels, including one by the name of "Tory", sailed into this harbor with some of its first settlers. Wellington, the capital of the country, is built on the hillsides and hills around a good harbor, with Mount Victoria rising in the centre of the city as a sort of sentinel on guard. This year the city celebrates the centenary of its founding in what was then Maori country.

My mission was not that of a tourist or sight-seer, however, so I lost no time in making necessary contacts. On the day I landed I met Mr. C. G. Scrimgeour, one of the most popular men in the country due to a radio programme he inaugurated called "The Friendly Road". He is the National Controller of New Zealand Commercial Radio Stations. Through his influence I received a ready welcome wherever I presented my letters of introduction. My investigations took me into many government departments, labor union offices, the Arbitration Court, amongst the "barbarians" into business houses, including the Ford company and the Beatty Bros. Company of Canada; into conversations with laborers, farmers, builders, industrialists, newspaper men; with Labor, Nationalist and Social Credit—a most interesting diet to most people but very necessary if one is to learn the true position and possibilities of a country.

The highlight of my stay in Wellington was a private interview with the Right Honorable Michael J. Savage, Prime Minister of New Zealand, which took place on March 15th. We spent an hour in discussion during which time I learned something of the ideals and aims of this quiet and kindly man. He is not the great orator, compared to our own Mr. Bennett, but his sincerity and humanity has made him the most popular leader in New Zealand's history. Having looked forward for five years to such a meeting you can readily understand my feelings upon its accomplishment.

From Wellington I went to Lyttelton, making the all-night run by small ferry, a distance of 175 miles. On the pier a train waits to carry the passengers under the mountain behind a two-mile tunnel and presently you emerge from the darkness to find yourself out on the Canterbury Plains and in the city of Christchurch. Although I had but a brief stop here, the atmosphere of the city seemed most pleasing. The cathedral that stands in Cathedral Square is the hub of the city and not far away is the Avon River. As it winds slowly through the beautiful botanical gardens and under the Arch of Remembrance, the war memorial, one could easily imagine a little of England had been transported to this remote Dominion. This is the most English of the cities of New Zealand, and is the chief centre of the northern portion of the South Island.

The trip across the Canterbury Plains reveals flat country resembling the prairies, with little farms lying all along the wayside, separated by hedges. There are few barns in evidence as there is little need to shelter the stock here, and the feed is stacked out of doors. This part of the country is noted for its sheep industry as well as some grain growing. The railroad crosses through the Southern Alps by Arthur's Pass, the final run of the trip being through a long tunnel under the mountain range, with an electric engine being substituted for the original steam one.

Greymouth, the principal city of the west coast of the South Island, is situated in country resembling the lower mainland of British Columbia. The abundant rainfall produces a vegetation that is really wild in its profusion and growth. This coast was once the scene of one of the world's great gold rushes and here was concentrated "the sum of the earth" as one early writer has recorded. At Greymouth I met the representative of the Christchurch Press who, upon learning that I came from Wainwright, said: "Oh, yes! That's where you have the buffalo in a cage on the station platform." He had crossed Canada as a member of the N.Z. All-Blacks football team ten years ago. Apparently it pays to advertise.

Not far away by modern bus transport, lies the town of Hokitika, now but a shadow of its former size during the gold days. At one time there were 50 hotels here, now there are but three. Today four huge electrically-operated dredges dig the gold from the muskeg country in larger quantities than all the thousands of rough, sweating, cumbering miners could by their most frenzied efforts. I spent some time on the Kanieri dredge, the largest of its kind in the world, and the romance of the scene gripped me. As I sat beside the operator on the control deck and watched this iron monster biting into the gravel and soil, washing the gold from it, and elevating the waste gravel 200 feet to pile it behind, I could not avoid grasping the very evident lesson. It taught, here was a true example of the replacement of man by the efficient scientific machine. In what occupation were the thousands who had covered this very ground before, who had been replaced by a crew of 50 men, working only a 40-hour week? My time was limited so I had to pass up the trip to the Glaciers and Mount Cook (12,349 feet), and Milford Sound with its wonder walk, and instead turned my steps towards Nelson, the centre of the fruit-growing industry. This quaint little city is known as Sleepy Hollow, since so many of the retired people come here to reside. En route I observed the effects of quakes in years past, where crumbling hillsides and dammed-up rivers were evidence of a work on a gigantic scale.

The "Arakura" caught the high tide to cross the sand bar that hems in the Nelson harbor, and after an all-night run of 150 miles across the Cook Strait I was back in Wellington. An interesting thing about this run is that the little boat passes Pelorus Sound where, in years previous to the war, a fish or dolphin used to swim out to meet a boat that came into these waters. Due to his strange antics in jumping against the side of the boat and swimming ahead, the fish was called Pelorus Jack, and the passengers always looked for "Jack" to pilot the boat in. So popular did he become that the New Zealand government protected him from destruction, thus Pelorus Jack became the only fish in the world to be protected by an Act of Parliament. During the war he disappeared. Some believe he was shot by enemy boats; some say he may have rubbed against the side of a mine and so was destroyed; perhaps he grew tired of man's company and betook himself to some quieter water, a sort of Valhalla for fishes. It is as strange a fish story as any fictitious one invented.

After another brief stop in Wellington, I journeyed by rail to Rotorua, in the centre of the thermal district of this strange little country. The discovery of the Pink and White Terraces, beautiful natural formations built up by the action of mineral hot water, brought the district world renown. These terraces were listed as one of the Wonders of the World, but unfortunately they were covered up by an earthquake in the 19's, and despite careful search they were never unearthed. Though the terraces now exist in pictures only, there remains an abundance of natural wonders to keep one interested and amused.

The thermal region is weird. You can see moss growing in the steam of a hot pool. The earth surface feels natural to the touch but if one digs but half an inch the soil becomes too hot for one to endure. You may paddle in a lake where you embark in cool water but before many minutes the steam rises around the boat as you are moving through hot water. A rock estimated to weight one and one-quarter tons is regularly pushed up by steam pressure in the manner of a natural sisyphus. The glacier ice descends into a lake and beside the ice is a hot spring. Two small streams flow side by side, one so cold that trout flourish there, the other hot enough to cook the same trout.

Amid the steaming hot pools, and on the ground that often quivers as one walks on it, and from which comes the sound of boiling water that cannot be far beneath one's feet, a Maori pa, or native village, is built. Here the Maori has lived for perhaps two centuries, cooking his food, bathing, washing his clothes, and perhaps originally cooking his captive in the natural hot water and steam, holes. Here, later, the Pakeha or white man came to heal his ailing body in the curative waters of the baths. So today in the town of Rotorua one finds the modern health and tourist resort mixed with two Maori villages, Whakarewareware and Ohimututu. In the latter village is built an Anglican church that is wholly decorated and carved in native carving by the native workers. In the churchyard that extends down to the shores of Lake Rotorua, the dead are buried above ground in rock formations, as it is impossible and unwise to dig beneath the surface. Here the minister may add emphasis to his story of eternal punishment by pointing to the doorway, where a sulphurous fume emits smoke and heat. The church itself is a work of art and is worthy of all its publicity.

In New Zealand there is no color line; the native is on an equal status in every way with his white brother. Today the four Maori constituencies of the North Island are represented by Maori state members, some of the most able speakers in the parliament. Inter-marriage is a quite common practice and unlike most native races, the Maori lives a useful life in agricultural pursuit. The native tribes account for five per cent. of the total population of the country and the rate of increase assures the continuance of the race. The old Maoris still believe that the white man will be driven from their country; and if one reads of the accounts of the Maori wars one wonders how the white man ever took the land originally.

Most tourists to Rotorua try a round on the local private golf course named Arakihonaka, which is laid out around the boiling mud holes and fumaroles. At the eighteenth hole two built-up pipes permit the sulphurous fumes to escape above ground and by holding a lighted match close a beautiful flare is produced. There are no less than seven natural traps at one place, where if one drives into the rough the ball disappears in the boiling mud pools. The course is very beautifully laid out and flowers and trees grow about the well-kept greens and fairways.

A week passed all too quickly in such weird and friendly surroundings. As the train started away from the station the words of the Maori farewell came in with the sunshine through the open windows. I had made the acquaintance of a happy people living in a blessed country.

In my next letter I will write something of the actual conditions that I found in New Zealand. The truth about a little country that, despite opposition, has solved her problems of unemployment, low agricultural prices, and financial debt, by the method of applying common sense and action instead of waiting for the problems to right themselves.

SERVICE

AN APPRECIATED Service!

SERVICE in the implement field is no mere appendage or fancy trimming.

Time and timeliness are the essence of success in most farming operations. Great loss may be sustained by the farmer, during seeding and harvesting, through machine breakdowns caused by wear and accidents, if parts are not readily available. It is then, that promptness in securing parts has a definite money value.

Massey-Harris has always taken a pride in the manner in which it has rendered Parts service. Fit and quality may be taken for granted, for replacement parts are identical with the originals. Its extensive selling organization, with local dealers in practically every town across Canada, brings this service within easy reach of every farmer.

No matter, too, how old the machine bearing the name "Massey-Harris" may be, spare parts can always be obtained for it.

© Last Spring a farmer ordered a small part for a drill he bought 30 years ago. He demanded many years for this part resulted in the pattern becoming destroyed. To make a new pattern and part cost $25.00, an expenditure willingly undertaken to preserve the Company's long and available record for service—although the part sold to the farmer for only 15c.

Personality Paragraphs!

Meet the Mr. Big of "Big Sister". His name is Martin Gable—and although actually he's not terribly big in size, he's big in spirit and mind, and he looks big.

What's more, he likes big things, especially big parts—not merely big in length and acting opportunities—but big in what he likes to call "heart". When first offered the part of Dr. John Wayne in "Big Sister" he nearly turned it down. "Too romantic—too sugary—too sentimental," said he. But he read through a few more scriptlets. He found that the character "came alive". It stepped out of the typewritten page and lived and breathed and looked up at you. The character was warm, human, sympathetic—a four-square, honest-to-God kind of man.

So Martin Gable became Dr. John Wayne of "Big Sister". You'll hear him from CJCA every day, Monday to Friday, 11:00 to 11:15 a.m. You'll agree that the part is right straight down the middle of his alley. He's been playing the part for over two and a half years. In the world of radio he's become a big man through and through!

Meet John J. Anthony—the man who seeks out trouble as eagerly as you and I hunt happiness. The only man in the U.S. who is officially classified in a woman's directory. Pilot of "The Good Will Hour," heard from CJCA Tuesdays, 7:00 to 7:30 p.m., Anthony is included in the Woman's Almanac because of his achievements in effecting much-needed reforms in marriage and divorce laws in the U.S.

Anthony claims that if you get married you're a gambler. According to a survey he conducted, you have a 100 to 5 chance of remaining married more than a year. Out of 100 couples who get married each year, 35 end in divorce or separation. More than 17 per cent. of all marriages end in divorce, and more than 35 per cent. in separation. Couples who have been married for more than 30 years account for three per cent. of the annual output of divorce mills. More than 1,800,000 men, during the past 10 years, have had to hand out all money savings of $15 per week in the U.S. alone. Such troubles are Anthony's business. He hunts for and heads the sore spots of humanity—and it looks as though he will never run short of patients.

Meet Ma Perkins' Daughter! Back in 1915 folks down in Aurora, Ill., and its neighboring communities in the Fox River valley barred actress Rita Ascut from all baby show contests! The banished her because until she was 3 years old, she had won all the prizes offered—a fact which caused judges to disqualify her so all the other tots would have a chance at a prize. You might think this opposition would be discouraging, but since Rita was only 3 years old at the time, she only tossed her head and forgot it. Then, when Rita was 15 years old, her public career had a second setback when her grandmother refused to let her accept a Keith circuit vaudeville troupe's offer for a year on the road with them plus dramatic instructions from a private tutor. This time Rita didn't even bother to toss her head. She simply refused food for two days, a fast which ended abruptly when her canny grandmother unexpectedly served a shrimp salad for luncheon. (Rita loves shrimp salad!) A year and 200 shrimp salads later, Rita's grandmother relented and the small actress went into stock, playing minor parts with the Gilbert Players in Grand Rapids, Michigan, during 1928. Then she took a radio audition. She's been with radio ever since. For the past year and a half you've heard her playing the part of Ma Perkins' daughter on the "Ma Perkins" program, 12:15 p.m. Monday to Friday. She's a brunette, 4 feet 9½ inches tall, and weighs 95 pounds. Lots of radio listeners, she says, think she really is Ma Perkins' daughter; and so does she, sometimes!

Studio Standstill! Frank Johnston, CJCA Merchandising Director, is boasting about his big cepes. They are brown and brawny. Daily after work he motors to the Saskatchewan practices catch racing. It is rumored that he and a friend will enter the annual Fort Saskatchewan canoe race. When it's official, we'll let you know. Northern Alberta precipitation being 100% above normal, during weeks might be accounted for by the scores of "showers" being given for Dorothy Horrocks, queen of the continuity department at CJCA, soon to become Mrs. Merrell Dahlgren! Stevie McKay's name is first on the vacation list this season. He'll holiday June 15 to July 10 at Vancouver and the San Francisco World's Fair!

Homemakers' Exchange

of Helpful Household Hints and Recipes

Conducted by ELEANOR HOWE

Have you ever thought of applying the principle of the Ark to your own kitchen and pantry—that is, have the kitchen utensils and ingredients go in cups crushed for two by two? It's a real tempest in a teapot. This speeds up the jelling process and does not affect the flavor. If pure taste-free ice is used, it will partially melt, then whip until fluffy. Fold in 1 cup whipping cream (whipped), 6 marshmallows (cut in quarters), 1 cup strawberries (diced), 1 banana (diced), and a pinch of salt. Place in wax paper-lined loaf pan in alternate layers with ¼ lb. vanilla wafers. Chill in modern air-conditioned ice refrigerator, until firm, or overnight if desired. The texture and flavor will be perfectly protected by the properly moist, clean-washed air. Serves 6 to 8.

A new and piquant beverage for spring festivities is Golden Glory Punch. To serve 10, make 4 cups of orange juice, 2 cups of ½ cup orange marmalade and ½ cup chopped maraschino cherries; add about ¼ cup of your juice. Chill.

Just before serving, add 1 quart gingerale, pour over crushed ice and serve at once. Pure, taste-free ice, as you know, may be obtained from the ice service man or a piece may be clipped off the block in your modern air-conditioned ice refrigerator and then crushed.

Gaping pockets can be avoided by making them closed rather than opened. Cut a strip of material about 1½ inches wide and as long as the pocket opening is to be. Stitch one side to the front edge, the other to the back edge of the seam opening. Stitch across the top and bottom ends of the pocket and sew on snap fasteners as usual.

Instead of using a grater when onion juice is needed, cut the onion in thin slices and put it through the ricer. This is a much more "painless extraction."

Jams, jellies and preserves make excellent gifts and always sell well at bazaars and food sales. Wax paper picnic cups, the shaped and not the plated kind, make excellent holders for the give-away jelly. Just let the jelly cool slightly before pouring it in. Cover with colored cellophane and tie with pretty wrapping ribbons.

"Prepared" dust cloths can be easily made at home. Simply pour 1 tablespoon of furniture polish into a glass fruit jar and shake the jar so that all the inside is coated. Then shake out a square yard of clean cheesecloth and put it in the jar. Let stand for 24 hours before using. When soiled, wash in soap and water, dry, and again place in the "treatment" jar.

West Has Everything for Summer Vacations

'Variety is the keynote of vacations in Canada's West.' In the Canadian Rockies is some of the most magnificent of the world's scenery, like the Banff Range in the Teton Valley of Jasper National Park. On prairie lakes hundreds enjoy sailing and other water sports as illustrated in the photograph at lower left. And at right is pictured Minkit Lodge, one of the most beautiful of Lake of the Woods resorts on the Canadian National Railway near Winnipeg.

H.M.C.S. Saguenay, one of the escort destroyers. Then, as the sound of rushing waters melted into soft organ music from the CBC's Halifax studios the voice of Frank Willis was heard, reading the farewell ode.

A FAREWELL TO THEIR MAJESTIES

From coast to coast your people with elation

Have given you gladly all their loyal praise;

At last fades out the welcome of a Nation.

And into story pass these noble days.

Take from our hearts these faithful words in parting.

When from our shore the lordly ship goes free.

While the last, swift Canadian gulls are darting.

And the long harbor opens to the sea.

May many a lovely memory never perish.

Scenes of our glorious country; far above

All the land's peerless beauty may you cherish

The crowning glory of a people's love.

While the King reigns from ocean to ocean,

Under the wide, serene Canadian sky,

We whom you leave in ageless, deep devotion,

Can never to our Sovereign say good-bye.

Master of Life whose power is never sleeping

In the dark void or in the hearts of men,

Hold them, our King and Queen, safe in Thy keeping

And bring them to their Western realm again.

And for their Canada be watchful ever—

Grant us this boon if there be one alone,

To do our part in high and pure endeavor

To build a peaceful Empire 'round the Throne.

—Duncan Campbell Scott.

Story Behind Veterans' Ties

Montreal.—When the King and Queen were in Calgary they were greeted by 300 members of the Canadian Legion wearing 300 handkerchiefs. The King and Queen thought the veterans looked very smart but they didn't know the story behind the ties.

A rush order for the 300 ties came into a factory in Montreal. The silk had to be woven specially and was shipped overnight from New York.

Next morning, it was on the Montreal looms. That night the completed ties were on a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane rushing west and early next morning they were in Calgary, where veterans were able to make a colorful show for their sovereigns.

THEY BELIEVE IN NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

Recommending that the institution of advertising appropriation be continued for still another year, the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association today paid glowing tribute to the value of newspaper advertising.

"It seems unnecessary to dwell on the advantages that have accrued to the institution of life insurance in Canada from its eighteen years of continuous co-operative advertising," the annual meeting of the Association was told by the committee in charge.

"As institutional advertising and publicity has been an invaluable factor in establishing and maintaining public confidence, so its continuation seems to us imperative as a necessary medium to keep policyholders and the public generally informed concerning the nature of life insurance as a co-operative enterprise and to counteract extreme measures advocated in some quarters and directed against the best interest of our millions of policyholders and beneficiaries."

Over the past year, forty million life insurance messages have appeared in daily and weekly newspapers and financial and farm publications. They have been devoted mainly to emphasizing the financial protection that permanent forms of life insurance provide for dependents and for old age and to stressing the social and economic importance of life insurance to the individual and to the nation.

These advertisements are sponsored co-operatively by large group of life insurance companies whose business comprises more than 80 per cent of the total insurance in force in Canada. Primarily educational in character, they have appeared in Canadian publications continuously since 1921.

RECTIFYING CATTLE DIET DEFICIENCY

In Alberta over eight million acres of land have been set aside as "special areas" and placed directly under the administration of a provincial board with power to administer the land within those areas. Mistakes of the land rush of 1900-1914, which saw thousands of land-hungry settlers invading what was previously a cattle man's paradise, are to be rectified.

Areas now known to be incapable of cultivation are being turned back to pasture land and fenced in. Water, soil and grass resources are to be controlled by public policy, based on conservation rather than exploitation. Scientists are also helping in the work of rehabilitation. For some years it has been known that the vegetation of the plains is deficient in minerals, and that this deficiency varies with the season. An indirect result of this deficiency is the occurrence of pizzle and reproductive troubles in horses and cattle. Many a rancher has been baffled by small calf crops until the feeding of low-cost mineral supplements developed by chemists for pregnant stock have cut down his losses. Today practically all big ranch operators in the short grass country feed minerals to their livestock.

Safety Driving Essay Contests

Growing interest in measures to bring about greater driving safety in this province is being demonstrated in various forms and in different districts.

In Edmonton, the branch of the Alberta Motor Association sponsored an essay competition which was staged as a feature of the annual Boys' and Girls' Fair. This competition was designed to arouse fresh interest on the part of boys and girls in safe driving and the growing need for greater safety on the highways and streets.

Numerous entries were received, giving the sponsors encouragement to stage the competition on a larger scale next year. Substantial cash prizes were given the winners.

The essays gave strong proof of the fact that there is a growing realization among school students as to the necessity of keeping traffic under proper control and drivers exercising extreme care to avoid accidents.

The success of essay contests in Edmonton and Calgary as well as other large centres should encourage many rural points to carry out similar competitions, in the opinion of officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

Will save you money

ON FIRST COST * FUEL * REPAIRS WILL MAKE MONEY BY DOING JOBS FASTER AND BETTER

The Fordson Tractor has earned its keep doing the jobs of more than three-quarters of a million farmers. It needs only a fraction of the feed of the 6 or 8 horses it replaces. Day and night it will handle the punishing tasks, speeding up the work, doing it better. Furthermore, the Fordson's economy means much to you. It costs less to buy than any other tractor of comparable power. Optional equipment is low in cost. It's economical to run. (Fuel systems for gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil). Simple design and rugged construction make for long, trouble-free operation. Service and replacements, when you eventually need them, cost little. As well as the agricultural models shown here, there's a Fordson high-clearance, adjustable rear tread row-crop tractor. Ask your Ford Dealer for details.

AMONG THE OLD-TIMERS

"REMINISCENCES OF OTHER DAYS"

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Mrs. Pecknold and son Wilfred, who are on their way to Ireland, were entertained at a house party at the home of Mrs. R. Aykroyd on Friday evening.

Adeline Rebekah Lodge entertained their president, Mrs. E. Moffatt, of Edmonton, at their regular meeting on Thursday.

Mrs. W. R. Gano left on Tuesday to visit her son and other relatives in Marmora, Ont.

Mrs. McNern, of Gilt Edge, is very ill in hospital.

Little Fred Billings, aged three years, was badly injured on Sunday evening when he was attacked by a dog. His face was badly cut and bruised in the encounter.

Miss Annie Irene Jameson, of St. Mary's, Ont., and Mr. H. E. Hudson, of Loughheed, were married at the home of the groom's brother, Mr. G. L. Hudson, on Monday.

While at play on Saturday last, little Janet Foster fell and broke her arm.

The members of the local L.O.O.F. lodges paraded to St. Andrew's (Pres.) church on Sunday evening last, where they held their annual Memorial Day service.

Mr. Lee Mabey suffered a broken arm when the horse he was riding stumbled and fell.

Mr. Jack Callas is having a house erected on the corner of Main Street and Sixth Avenue.

When a battery he was working on exploded and scattered acid over him, Mr. Harold Brunker suffered a badly burned eye.

This week Mr. M. L. Forster relinquished the lease on the Park Hotel. The premises have been taken over by the Agrols Brothers, of Calgary.

North Edgerton

Rain over the past week has greatly strengthened the outlook for a fair crop this year, although a volley of hailstones as big as gooseberries fell on the Battle River last Monday. Crops were not damaged.

Mrs. A. W. Clark returned from the Viking Hospital last week, following an operation there. She is reported to be in a very weakened condition. Rest and sunshine, we sincerely hope, will be a cure.

Mrs. E. McMurdo was rushed to the Lloydminster hospital last week with influenza.

Mr. James Miles received serious injuries to his face last Saturday as he was cranking his tractor to start ploughing. Thrown off balance, he was hurled into the radiator of the engine, sustaining a bad laceration near the left eye and badly bruising the entire side of his face. In spite of the injury, however, Mr. Miles has not neglected his farm work and is now busy summer-fallowing.

Mrs. C. W. Brian returned this week from Wainwright hospital. She is quite well again, we are glad to report.

The farm of Mr. F. Mitchell, operated by Mr. A. Pickard, Jr., last week was raided by a person or persons who, not satisfied with pulling up and stealing several young fruit trees seemed to take a great delight in destroying for the fruit trees left were deliberately cut off with some kind of sharp instrument and rhubarb growing close by was trampled almost out of sight.

We notice Mr. A. Pickard, Jr., district weed inspector for Division No. 3 of Merton M.D., is now on the lookout for noxious weeds. You had better look out, farmers; get busy with that hoe.

MAYFIELD

The softball tournament of the Gilt Edge track meet was finally decided last week, when Mayfield school won a victory over the Plaxtonville school by a score of 16 to 5. Congratulations, Mayfield.

The rains of the past two weeks have made the crops and gardens look much better.

Misses Leona Rathwell and Gladys Souter spent the week end at their respective homes.

SYDENHAM

Some of the farmers have been very busy during the past week, putting in their time on road work.

Mr. Cody was in the district on Tuesday.

Mr. J. Baker was at Calgary at the end of last week.

Miss M. Wandell was a guest on Sunday, visiting at the home of Miss June Seabrook.

TEN YEARS AGO

Mr. A. Drewicki is building a new house on his farm west of the Wainwright holdings.

Mr. J. Moore was a patient at the local hospital during the past week, suffering from an attack of rheumatism.

A derrick is being erected on the Barn farm just west of town by the Beth-Wain Oils, Ltd.

Miss V. Garneau is here from Lacombe, Alberta, on a visit to her brother Mr. E. Garneau.

A special expansion number, marking 21 years of progress of The Star, was published last week. Instituted in 1908, The Star has continued to progress and this week have moved into their new up-to-date premises on Main Street. A new press, as well as other machinery, has been added to the already large equipment, in order to better serve the community in which it operates.

EDGERTON

June 21st—halfway through the year already and it is also the longest day, so tomorrow we shall begin the half on the way to winter. Not a particularly cheering thought, but thank goodness, the change will be gradual—or will it?

Mr. and Mrs. Davis accompanied by Madam Royal, have returned from their vacation. They visited many points in Quebec, then on to the States. When in New York they saw as much of the World's Fair as time permitted. They say it is marvellous and altogether too huge to see properly in less than two weeks' time. They also had plenty to say about the New York heat, but in spite of that it was a wonderful holiday all the way, and they were in Montreal for the royal visit celebrations, which was an added attraction.

Congratulations to Ruth Phillips, who was one of the happy students from Alberta College who received her diploma at the graduation exercises held Friday last in Edmonton. May it help her to win success in the far future.

The postponed Sports Day was held Wednesday last, with perfect weather conditions prevailing, and although there was not a record crowd in attendance, all those present seemed to be thoroughly enjoying themselves. After the bustling activities that went on all day, the crowd streamed into the local theatre for a truly fine picture, "Men With Wings", which, while being absorbingly interesting brought to mind very forcibly the enormous strides made in the art of flying in the last decade. Most of us take such marvels for granted.

Crops and gardens should be able to withstand all kinds of heat after such wonderful rains as we have had recently but, human nature being what it is, we have already heard mummings and grumbings about this blanket-blank rain.

Percy Keeping, of Montreal, arrived early Sunday morning and will spend a few days with his relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fawcett, before proceeding to the west coast for a vacation there.

We visited the fine new dental parlor trailer now being used by Dr. Olsen, of Chauvin. It certainly is a splendidly equipped affair, everything from the wickedest looking forceps right down to the dinkiest little sink with running hot and cold water. Whilst admitting that a visit to a dentist is never a pleasure—to us, anyway—there is no doubt that the dentist will derive much joy from the practical but pleasant-to-him combination office and home. We are wondering if the drill hurt any less. Next week will tell the tale—ugh!

After a few weeks of comparative peace, the dogs of war are again growing, only this time from a different direction. Japan appears to be mimicking the dictators, and it would seem that the only effective method to use is for the democracies to start dictating too!

GREENSHIELDS

Mrs. Bob Allen and Mrs. Irving Neil, of Coleville, Sask., were guests of Mrs. H. N. Merrick for a couple of days this week, following the Rattray-Chynoweth wedding on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rattray entertained their many friends at a dance in the hall on Wednesday evening, following their marriage. All report an enjoyable time.

Mr. R. I. Bond was in Edmonton on Saturday to attend a grain buyers' convention.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. P. E. Patterson on Thursday afternoon last. Mrs. W. Jackson conducted a quiz which was won by Mrs. T. E. Armstrong. It was decided that instead of the usual July picnic the members all go to the annual Old Timers' Picnic. Mrs. P. Patterson and Mrs. W. White served a delicious lunch.

Used cars have been changing hands in this district again. Marshall Jackson now drives a V8 coach while the Muncester Brothers have a Chev sedan.

Sheepskin Flats

We are pleased to report that Gunner Rasmussen is much better these days.

Mr. Henry Myers, of Ponoka, visited with his son Lloyd last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts were trippers to the city last week end, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Torrance, of Wainwright.

The Gilt Edge Ladies' Club held their monthly meeting on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. Joe McLennan.

MODERN WOMEN

CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS
President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

No words of praise are too great for the courage and fortitude displayed by Mrs. Beryl Markham, the English woman who spanned the Atlantic Ocean and the first woman to make a solo flight from east to west. Mrs. Markham has returned to her native country after having received great acclaim here. One of her chief delights while in New York was to dash about with an escort of motorcycle police.

Because of her national reputation as a forecaster of crops, Mrs. E. H. Miller is now associated with the New York Stock Exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade and other exchanges with headquarters in Chicago. For many years she has been issuing grain and cotton reports and has traveled extensively to get first hand information on which she bases her estimates.

Alaska has elected its first woman legislator and it is not at all surprising to hear that the candidate, Mrs. Nell Scott, covered her district by airplane, talking with the voters individually and without making a single campaign speech. Mrs. Scott came from Seattle to Seldovia and soon attained leadership in her own district. She was a delegate to the last territorial Democratic convention at Seward.

Developing personality is the aim of Alice Rice Cook who wants people to see themselves as others see them. She calls it "personal adequacy." She has an office in New York where a client is seated in front of a mirror and asked to take stock of herself. Appearance, dress, voice and general attitude are all considered by the long list of experts in various fields who serve as Miss Cook's consultants. Her experiments are scientific and she contends that anyone, even the unrefined, can gain happiness by finding out just how she looks to others. Miss Cook has been Dean of Briarcliff Junior College and has taught here and at Hunter College, New York.

A Thrilling Story of a Mysterious Inheritance

3 Strange Men

by C. T. PODMORE, Author of "The Fault", etc.

CHAPTER IX STRANGE ENDING

Surprise at this rencontre was George Parmiter's topmost feeling as he stepped on to the pavement outside.

It was barely eight o'clock, and taxis were plentiful in the streets. Twenty yards from Jawney's door, where a fare was being discharged, he observed Ephraim Diggs stepping into a cab he had just hailed. Another cab was approaching. This, at a sign from George, was stopped for him by Jawney's commissionaire. He had just time to give rapid instructions to the driver when Diggs' cab started off.

Unless he had an intermediate call to make, Diggs was not going to Abinger's Hotel, for the taxi was speeding in another direction. By the left along Oxford-street, it turned into the Edgeware Road. The idea which had apparently entered Mr. Diggs' mind in Jawney's bordered suspicion on George scarcely wondered at the man's duplicity, however, for he had enough incentive to this as a single unit of three with equal chances. He would naturally ask himself, "What game is this fellow up to?" Still, he must be made to listen.

Passing rapidly through Marylebone, by Maida Vale, and along the Kilburn High Road, the car containing Mr. Diggs turned off by Cricklewood-lane for Finchley Road. "Golders Green, perhaps," thought George, intently watching the route.

He had not much knowledge of this neighborhood, and could not have named a single street they passed. The district was comparatively rural. When at length the Diggs' taxi turned down a side road, threaded several avenues, and drove up, at a house shaded by trees in a garden of its own exactly resembling others in its immediate neighborhood, George had but a dim idea of where he was. And by this time the dusk had deepened

His driver pulled up at a house about fifty yards behind.

From this distance George saw Mr. Diggs discharge his man, pause to survey the road, and disappear along the path to the house.

The driver to the taxi which had brought Diggs gazed hard, as he came by, at the one which had followed. George decided to pay off his driver as Diggs had done. The situation appeared speculative.

Then he went forward to the house Diggs had entered, and boldly rang the front door bell.

There was no immediate reply, so he rang again.

This time he was answered by a man who had somewhat the appearance of a butler, and who stood in the aperture of the doorway like a screen so that George had but a slight glimpse of a hall in darkness.

"I wish to see Mr. Diggs, please," said George.

"Mr. Diggs, sir? There is no such person here."

"But haven't I just seen him enter?"

"No, sir—not here, sir. No one here this half-hour."

"Strange!" George returned. "I am positive I saw him come here three minutes ago in a taxi. May I ask who lives here?"

"I do," the man replied, "and my name isn't Diggs. This is a private club, sir, and I'm the resident steward."

George was nonplussed. But he returned to the attack.

"I am quite sure," he rejoined, "that I saw a gentleman come here three minutes ago. Have you a side or a back entrance?"

"No, sir—front only."

"Are you in alone?"

"Well—no. But there's no Diggs if you like to step in, I'll bring the secretary, and perhaps you'll take his word."

George promptly accepted the invitation, and the man promptly closed the door behind him. They were quite in the dark. George had observed that all the blinds were drawn. The steward's hand was on his arm, guiding him gently but firmly to one side.

"In this little room, sir, please—if you don't mind being in the dark a minute—I'll give you a light."

George moved forward a little as the door clicked behind him. And then he stood still, hardly daring to grope forward lest he walked into something.

It was an odd position to be in. But he knew something of the secrecy of private clubs and, though tempted to feel for his matches as the moments went by, since no light came, he waited and listened in patience.

Footfalls sounded at last. How many he could not tell, they were so commingled, but he had an impression that they were shuffling and stealthily. The door was opened just as he was about to put his hand upon it, and the voice of the man who had admitted him said, "Come this way, sir, will you?"

Two persons were waiting for him to cross the threshold. He stepped out, and what happened afterwards seemed like the remnants of a dream.

There must have been others on either side of the doorway. From one of them a blow fell that put resistance out of his power. From the two in front he remembered no movement at all. But he did not lose consciousness. He heard a short grim laugh like an ejaculation, and was aware of an impulse to launch himself into violent muscular protest. Then—nothing. But this muscular exertion seemed to be exciting him when he came round, though in reality he was almost nervous.

He was suffering from violent headache and nausea.

And it was early daylight.

He lay in the garden. They had put him outside. That was strange.

How long had he lain here?

He gazed round while struggling to his feet.

The house looked quiet and ordinary; so normal, in fact, that he felt like a trespasser. Anyone passing might imagine that his condition was the climax of a drunken escapade.

That was how he felt—as if he had got here by misdirection, and had merely dreamed the truth.

What to do now? He shook himself, and flicked soil off his clothes here and there. He felt that Mr. Diggs would not be here now, if he were to knock at the door. What mistake lay at the bottom of this? It was a mystery.

Moving around to the back of the house, he was able to peer into a couple of the lower rooms, where the blinds had not been fully drawn. One was an ordinary kitchen, trim and lifeless. The other was a dining room where cards had been played, some glasses were in evidence, and chairs stood out of place.

Gathering his wandering and troubled thoughts together as well as he could, he moved back to the front gate and, opening it, stepped almost into the arms of a policeman.

"Hello!" exclaimed the latter, curiously.

"Who lives here, officer?" George returned, "do you know?"

"Gentleman name of Swayle, sir."

"It's a club, isn't it?"

"Club?—Lord, no. There's no club round here."

"No private club, with a resident steward?"

"No. Nothing of that sort. Have you been in a club?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"The constable shook his head rather gravely. "No, sir," he said, "not here. Nowhere about here."

"Funny," said George; "there's a mistake somewhere."

"And you're hurt, too," the constable remarked, "eh?"

"Nothing much, I think," George replied, conscious that some blood from an abrasion on his head had dripped about his forehead. He knew, too, by his sensations, that he had been dosed with a drug of some sort.

"Never mind, officer; perhaps I had better get home."

"Far to go, sir?"

"Brompton Road."

"It's early—but take the second turn up there, and you'll get a taxi."

"Thanks," George gave him half-a-crown and moved on. But after a few steps he looked round upon the constable, who had seen all sorts of early morning sequels to adventures of the night, and had no idea that he was in this case drawing wrong conclusions. "You don't happen to have heard the name of Diggs round here?"

"No, sir. No one round here name of Diggs."

George had reached the corner of the first street before he conceived at all clearly what his procedure should be. The officer was now out of sight, so he began to look for the marks of wheels turning by the pavements.

He found none but middle tracks.

"The wrong street," he said to himself. "It's strange."

Then, struggling against his giddiness, he found his way into a parallel street of similar houses, and continued his search for the tracks. Here again he was disappointed. Further survey, however, revealed that there was still another street—if not more—of the same type, and in this he found what he was looking for. Here were two vehicular indications, at about fifty yards from each other.

At the second one George stopped.

The characters in this story are entirely imaginary, and no reference to any living person is intended.

SOIL DEFECTS SHOWN BY A CHEMICAL TEST

A turnip patch or a grain field is made up of countless soil particles containing simple and complex chemical substances, the relative proportion of each changing as the crop uses up the readily available supply, says G. B. Snyder, soil chemist.

Part of the farmer's job is to handle the soil in such a manner as to promote chemical activity, so that the changing of the more complex forms of nitrogen and mineral compounds to the simpler water-soluble forms will be rapid enough to supply the demands of the growing crop.

Soil bacteria are the workers that speed up chemical activity. They thrive best when the soil is well supplied with lime, nitrogen, phosphate and organic matter high in nitrogen, such as obtained from crop residues, manure, legume or rye crop ploughed in.

When the top soil is washed or blown away the farmer loses not only the soil particles but also much of the bacterial life.

When crop growth is unsatisfactory the soil should be carefully examined for a deficiency of one or more of the essential plant food substances. In an unfavorable soil reaction which may be too acid or too alkaline. A chemical soil test is likely to reveal the trouble.

Several agricultural experiment stations and certain manufacturers of commercial fertilizer provide a free soil-testing service, so that the only cost to the farmer is the postage on the sample submitted. In the taking of samples an important factor is to ensure that the soil collected is representative of the area being studied. A statement giving brief but full details regarding recent manuring and cropping history of the field should be sent with the sample. This information aids the correct interpretation of the results yielded by the test.

The technique of sampling is quite simple. Areas of the same field that have been treated differently (with lime or otherwise) or are behaving in a different manner should be kept separate.

Equipped with a clean shovel and pail, the farmer goes to the field and digs a square-sided hole to approximately plow depth. He takes a slice of soil of about one-quarter inch thick from top of soil to bottom of hole.

Proceeding in the same manner, he takes several samples from various parts of the area and then mixes them together thoroughly. About one cupful of this representative sample is all that is required for the test. In the case of alfalfa and other deep-rooted crops, a sample of subsoil also is desirable.

Thousands of dollars are lost annually through the general practice of cutting hay too late in the season. This is particularly true of prairie hay or native grasses which mature early.

It is a well-known fact that young plants are high in protein, while older plants have a higher percentage of fibre. The most nutritive hay is obtained from young plants, but the higher yields are produced by mature crops. In Alberta, the ideal practice is to cut the hay crop when it is sufficiently mature to yield well, and before it has passed the stage when the nutritive value begins to fall off badly.

The average percentage of protein in five native grasses over a period of four years was found to be 18 per cent, when the hay was cut in the leafy stage, but only 9.5 per cent, when the grasses were cut in the flowering stage. This indicates very clearly that the young plants are higher in protein content.

In Alberta, clovers may be cut when about 25 per cent of the bloom has turned brown. Sweet clover should be cut when the crop is just blooming. Alfalfa produces very good hay when roughly 50 per cent of the crop is in bloom. Timothy and other grasses should be cut at the full bloom stage. Hay which is cut early and properly cured not only has a higher feed value, but will reduce the amount of mill feed required.

In some districts early haying may not be possible because of climatic factors, but the practice of cutting hay crops at an early date should be encouraged in order to obtain the highest amount of nutrient in the hay.

The World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

The manner by which temporary help is to be given for this year to western farmers has now been settled by the Dominion government. The assistance is appreciated, and it will do much to tide the west over for another year.

But no bonus or assistance given by the Dominion government will ever sell abroad an extra bushel of wheat. So now the real and important problem has to be faced, i.e., how to sell our total average annual wheat produced for export, which will mean the sale of about 100 million bushels each year more than the world is now purchasing.

There are millions of people in the world today who are sadly in need of these extra 100 million bushels of Canadian wheat, and who are willing in turn to pay for this additional food with their own manufactured goods. But the Canadian and other high tariffs, and other restrictions set up which now strangle international trade, prevent these healthy exchanges from taking place. Only the removal of these harmful obstructions to international trade will, I believe, solve this important problem.

This matter, I courteously suggest, should now be studied earnestly by all the western farmers, and by all those who are the farmers' true friends.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Broomhall revises importers' wheat requirements upward to 580 million—Estimates suggest decrease in 1939 world wheat acreage—Excessive rainfall lowers very bright

Italian crop prospects—Some inflation feared in Great Britain and the U.S.A.—Drought affects year and apple crops in New Zealand.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Very generous rains have occurred in Western Canada—International Institute at Rome estimates world wheat "carry-over" on July 1st will be much larger than a year ago—German winter rye prospects continue above average—Some rains have occurred in the United States wheat belt—Decrease in Oriental purchases of wheat.

Italian crop prospects—Some inflation feared in Great Britain and the U.S.A.—Drought affects year and apple crops in New Zealand.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Very generous rains have occurred in Western Canada—International Institute at Rome estimates world wheat "carry-over" on July 1st will be much larger than a year ago—German winter rye prospects continue above average—Some rains have occurred in the United States wheat belt—Decrease in Oriental purchases of wheat.

Good Advertising Is Not An Expense

If you think so, get it out of your mind—it isn't.

Carefully prepared copy, well printed, sent to a logical consumer of the product that you have to sell is the cheapest way to reach his eye and attention and thus prepare for his interview with you or your salesmen. Because, after all, if you can talk with him and he needs your product the ground work will have been done by thoughtful advertising.

And when you have left him—what then? Have you had the proper kind of follow-up literature to cement that contact?

Of course, this advertisement is merely intended to cause you to wonder if you may not be missing something by not knowing more about us.

We print—and we print well.

Are You a Manufacturer?

What are you doing to help your dealers sell the product that you have sold to them? Are you backing them up with printed sales aids?

Do you furnish them with Hangers, Counter Cards, Booklets, Folders, Blotters, Window trips, Envelope Enclosures, etc.?

You don't? Of course, you realize that the greater help you can be to them the sooner and the oftener they will order from you—that's only good sense.

Perhaps, then, you need an organization such as ours to help you think along with you in this problem of creating sales for yourself by helping your dealers.

All right. We are ready when you are. We plan and produce Printing that sells goods for our customers.

Hints for the Household

Conducted By Betty Barclay

THOSE ZESTFUL STRAWBERRIES
This is the season of the year when strawberries and cream may be enjoyed by all. Cultivated strawberries are inexpensive. Wild strawberries are ready for picking and accessible to millions.

So here are two unusual strawberry desserts.

Strawberry Cream Tart
1 package vanilla arrowroot pudding
2 cups milk
1 quart strawberries
½ cup sugar
1½ cup water
Few grains nut
1 tablespoon corn starch
1 baked pastry shell

Mix vanilla arrowroot pudding with milk. Bring to boil, stirring constantly.

Hot and Cold
Mash 1 cup strawberries very fine. Heat sugar, water and salt to boiling. Add mashed berries; stir well and strain. Heat to boiling again and remove any foam on top. Mix corn starch with 1 tablespoon cold water; add to hot syrup, stirring constantly. Continue cooking until thick and clear, about 10 minutes. Cool.

Four cooled vanilla pudding in pastry shell, arrange whole strawberries on top and spoon thickened strawberry syrup over berries to glaze. Chill thoroughly. Makes 1 nine-inch tart.

Pineapple Cream With Fresh Strawberries

1 package quick-setting gelatin (desert (pineapple flavor))
1 cup boiling water
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 cup cream, whipped

Dissolve quick-setting gelatin in boiling water; add sugar and salt. Chill until it thickens; add milk, mixing thoroughly. Fold in whipped cream. Pour into ring mould and chill until firm. Fill center with fresh strawberries. Serves 8.

Lemon Mint Sauce

1 cup sugar, dissolved in
½ cup lemon juice
¼ cup finely minced mint leaves
Combine and let stand about ½ hour. Best with lamb. Serves 6.

Butterscotch Ice Cream

2 tablespoons butter
¾ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1½ cups hot milk
1 cup whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
Melt butter. Add brown sugar and cook one minute. Stir in flour and salt. Add hot milk to beaten eggs and stir into sugar mixture. Cook coats spoon. Chill. Fold in cream, whipped, and vanilla. Pour into freezing trays of refrigerator and freeze 2 to 3 hours.

Lemon French Dressing

½ cup lemon juice
¼ cup salad oil
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons sugar or honey
Shake well before serving. (Makes 1 cup).

Orange Ambrosia
(Serves 6)

6 oranges, peeled and sliced
½ cup powdered sugar
½ cup grated coconut
Arrange orange slices in serving dish; sprinkle with sugar and coconut. California oranges are preferred for slicing since they are firm-meated and virtually seedless.

Halibut and Kidney Pie

1 lb. Canadian halibut or
1 tin chicken haddock
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups water
1 small onion, chopped
1 beef kidney

Baking powder biscuit dough

Place the halibut on a rack, sprinkle with salt and pepper and cook over boiling water until tender, 8 to 10 minutes, depending on the thickness. Separate into flakes. Wash and split the kidney, remove the core and membrane and cut into sections. Cover cold, salted water and let stand for half an hour. Drain and cook in the butter for two or three minutes. Add the flour and cook from 2 to 3 minutes longer, stirring frequently until nicely browned. Add the water, chopped onion and sea-sonings, cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Add the flaked halibut and turn the mixture into a deep baking dish. Roll baking powder biscuit dough to one-third inch thickness, cut with a medium cutter and place biscuits on top of mixture in the baking dish. Bake in a hot oven (450° F.) until the biscuits are risen and nicely browned. Four to five servings. Smoked haddock may be used in place of halibut.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

PLANNING FOR HEALTH

Public concern for public health makes the leading editorial in the current issue of "Health" of timely interest. The editor of the official publication of the Health League of Canada, says:

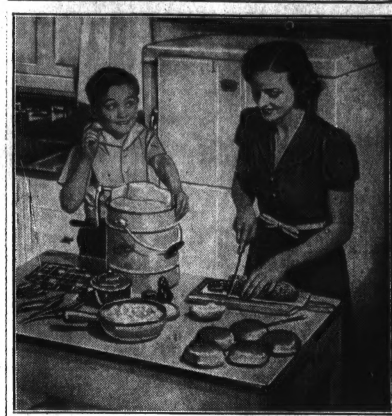

"The suggestion made in the House of Commons recently by the Honorable C. G. Power, Minister of Pensions and National Health, that a national conference should be called to discuss ways and means of developing a Dominion-wide health program will meet with general approval. Such a conference was called in Washington last July and at that time the details of a health programme for the United States were approved.

"If a similar conference is to be called in Canada considerable preliminary work will be necessary before it will be possible to approach the national health problems intelligently. This implies the carrying out of preliminary studies by various groups. It is suggested that all interested bodies, official and voluntary, should consider the possibilities of such a conference and be prepared to submit facts as to the need for action in particular fields.

"The weakness of inter-provincial conferences of health such as have been held in the past has been failure to undertake preliminary planning essential to the development of a sound programme. It has been notorious that proposals brought forward have not been studied. The result has been a variety of requests from different provinces none of which could be carried out in the absence of unanimity.

"Nor is unanimity alone sufficient. It requires time to study and elaborate a plan which is sound and unanimous and there are many health problems in Canada which require attention. Specific problems such as venereal disease and tuberculosis need specific action but in addition the general health machinery is far from perfect and in the provision of full-time health service throughout Canada rests the solution of many disease problems. Health insurance is undoubtedly a question in which the need for Dominion and Provincial co-operation is obvious. Everything considered a national health conference will open up great possibilities for improving general health and lowering death rates throughout the Dominion. But the suggested conference will only be successful insofar as the spadework which precedes successful conference is well done."

REFRIGERATOR HAMBURGERS ARE NEW

FIRST cousin to refrigerator cookies is this newest version of the perennially favorite hamburger. "Refrigerator Hamburgers" make their bows in time for July picnics and in time, too, for the busy-day summer meals which demand beforehand preparations.

REFRIGERATOR HAMBURGERS

1 pound hamburger
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon horseradish
¼ cup chopped green pepper

Mix the ingredients together in the order named and shape into a roll about ¾ inches in diameter. Place in the refrigerator for several hours or overnight. When ready to use, cut in slices and broil on pan fry, as for regular hamburger patties. This makes a quick and easy prepared luncheon dish and is equally good for midnight snacks or for picnics. You need have no qualms about preparing refrigerator hamburgers the day before you plan to use them, if you have a modern air-conditioned refrigerator. Properly moist, clean-washed, circulating air will keep the roll from drying out and prevent it from exchanging flavors with any other foods you may have in the refrigerator at the same time.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

An active mind must have exercise in order to last long and prove the most in efficiency. Nothing endures long if allowed to rust, smoulder, decay. I have seen many men to whom mental silence was a deadly bore. You've found it that way, haven't you? Wholesome activity is one of the best things, positively beneficial to the intellectual human being.

Even the eye is said to require systematic exercise, if the owner would reserve good eyesight far into life's arctic regions. Men who are denied up in big cities rarely employ the eyes to see over a few blocks; they become accustomed to short distances and fine print. Hence the array of spectacle-wearers, most of them bi-focals. The aged resident of the great open spaces often does not need glasses at three score-and-ten! Wholesome exercise for the eyes!

The imprisoned muscle of the intellectual is never more than fifty per cent normal—often much lower. We are growing into a race of intellectuals at the price of rugged, vigorous health.

But be sure to get this: EXERCISE IS NOT TORTURE. No man gives his eyes exercise, reading diminutive, blurred type, with the over-estimated publication held eight inches from his face, often with a poor light. He inflicts punishment of the most dangerous kind.

It is the same of the mind. To overwork the mental faculties is almost as fatal to them as profound laziness—idleness. I shudder for the fool that races his mind day and night—that gives it no rest in the quiet hours for calm. Remember the crash is out yonder in front, not in the back as you think.

The muscles—those wonderful hinges, pulleys, levers! Exercise them, at short intervals, if you would keep physically fit.

Beauty for YOU

The Secrets of Good Looks by Barbara Lynn

BEAUTY FOR THE BRIDE!
Every bride naturally desires to surpass herself on her wedding day, so follow out this programme, to give yourself a new radiance on your happy day.
Get your permanent three weeks beforehand. Your hair should lose its "newness" and become soft and natural-looking for the bridal day. If, unfortunately, your hair turns too crisp or fuzzy, you've time to give it frequent mulled coconut oil shampoo treatments, to restore its softness.
Every day for two weeks before the ceremony, devote ten minutes to these facial treatments: (1) at night, before retiring, wash your face with warm water and gentle palmolive soap. Rinse with cold water, then pat in tissue cream; (2) using a nourishing tissue cream, spend five minutes daily in kneading, stroking and patting your face; (3) twice each week apply a good face mask.
One week before: Set to work on your hands, using protective, hand-softening Italian balm generously and often.
Two days before: Shampoo your hair, to leave it shining. Manicure your nails. Avoid extremes; shape your nails in conservative rounded tips and tint them with a subdued natural or fragile rose shade.
One day before: Apply a face mask afterwards smoothing over with a rich cream; and on your wedding day because you're bound to be "jittery" and excited, don't forget to use odorless deodorant cream to banish the odor of perspiration.
Write for confidential beauty advice and any of my beauty leaflets (3c stamp each). Address: Miss Barbara Lynn, P.O. Box 75, Station B, Montreal, Que.

NEWS &amp; VIEWS OF TOWN AND DISTRICT

Mr. Leo O'Reilly underwent an operation in an Edmonton hospital last week and according to reports is getting along satisfactorily.

Final exams are in full swing at the local schools this week for all those who were not fortunate enough to be promoted on their year's work.

We're glad to see Mr. Harry Clifton back on the job in the vendor's store after several months' leave of absence due to ill health.

***There is an old proverbial saying that "The sole is half the soul!" This is implicitly true, for who does not feel his natural self when wearing well-shod shoes—shoes which are repaired by skilled craftsmen with fine grade leather, essential for long service and comfort? For that added essentiality take your shoes to the O.A. Shoe Repair; the prices, above all else, is pleasing. Harness repaired like new.

Sympathies are expressed to Mr. J. Patterson, who, on Friday, received word of the passing of his sister in Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ward left at the week end for their annual holidays, which they intend to spend in Detroit and other eastern points.

Miss Wilma Brunner underwent an operation in the local hospital for appendicitis on Wednesday last.

***Wool Growers—Car of wool will be shipped Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Ltd. from Wainwright, Wednesday, July 5th. Cash advance will be paid at car, one cent higher than 1938—Ship your wool to the Co-operative and obtain the highest price obtainable.

Despite the unpleasant weather quite a large crowd attended a dance in the Separate School Auditorium on Friday evening, sponsored by the Literary Society of the Separate School.

To spend a holiday with relatives in Wisconsin, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Christopherson left by auto for that point last week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Trewatha, of Edmonton, were in town visiting relatives last week.

***Watch for the dates of the Field Day and Ploughing Match to be held in this district soon, under the auspices of the Agricultural Improvement Association.

Next Sunday, June 25th, at 2:30 p.m., Dr. R. S. Stevens expects to hold divine service in the Orange hall at Gilt Edge, when all in that district are invited to attend.

Mrs. Geo. Glass was a visitor in Edmonton at the week end.

Mr. Jack Davidson, of Dodds, Alta., has been appointed grain buyer at the Alberta Pacific elevator in town and is making arrangements to move here with Mrs. Davidson.

***You can't afford to take chances when driving. Get insurance on your car if it's the last cent you have. The very best of drivers often meet some big fool on the road and the result is likely to be disastrous to you and to your family unless you can leave the matter to the insurance agent. Joe Welch will attend to it for you; phone 57.

To spend a short holiday in town with friends and relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Laird and daughter were down from Edmonton last week.

At time of writing, rain has fallen in town for the 16th consecutive day and the way the sky looks, we may still expect more.

Mr. Ted Carrier, who has been relieving at the Chauvin branch of the Bank of Montreal, completed his duties on Saturday and left on his annual holidays.

Mr. E. Dick arrived in town this week, having been transferred from Edmonton to the Bank of Montreal staff here.

Several local and out-of-town pupils took their music exams at St. Joseph's convent on Saturday, when an examiner from the Toronto Conservatory of Music was present.

Mr. P. McLeod, who has been deputizing at the local vendor's store for the past several months, left Sunday morning for his home in Edmonton.

Ontario produced two-thirds of the gross value of iron and steel output in Canada during 1937.

A hundred years ago, archaeologists were bringing some of the ruins of Carthage to light.

Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Reikle, of Edmonton, were in town renewing acquaintances early this week.

TIPS FOR SUMMER COTTAGES

With the advent of warm weather, and the approach of the holiday season, families everywhere are making plans for their annual exodus to the summer resort districts. The large proportion who own or rent summer cottages, and the thousands of others who go camping, are mindful of many requisites. Here are a few hints:

1. First aid equipment is one of the primary needs at every summer cottage. Special boxes, packed with all necessities, are sold at moderate cost.

2. There are no electric lights in the woods, so make sure you pack a flashlight in your luggage. Reload it now with fresh, dated batteries.

3. For the users of oil stoves, new burners are invariably needed and often these can only be obtained at the store where the stove was bought.

4. Motor boat owners will take what is needed for caulking, painting and otherwise overhauling their craft, but a boat motor that won't start is as bad as the car without a battery. Waterproof hot shot batteries are essential and should be procured before going to the cottage.

5. For the sake of comfort and need rest, take with you an insect repellent lotion that will keep away mosquitoes, black flies and other insects. Druggists are selling a new type that actually has a pleasant odor.

6. A new light, portable battery radio of the type which has become so popular should not be overlooked if your summer abode is not wired for electricity. It can be used on picnics, boat trips, etc.

USES FOR THE LEMON

Lemon juice can be substituted for vinegar in any recipe that calls for the latter except pickling.

Lemon will sour milk sufficiently for cooking.

When stewing dried fruits, add a small amount of lemon juice and a bit of grated lemon rind. It will greatly improve the flavor of the fruit.

Add lemon juice to the water in which you are boiling fish. It will help to keep the fish whole and preserve flavor and nutriment.

A few drops of lemon juice will keep old potatoes from discoloring.

When whipping cream, add three or four drops of lemon juice to a cup of cream to make it stiff and firm.

A few drops of lemon juice in the water in which eggs are to be poached will keep the eggs from separating.

When aluminum kettles have become dull or black, clean them with lemon juice and rinse in warm water.

Immediately after dishwashing, while the hands are still moist, rub in a little lemon juice. It will keep the hands soft and white.
